

Completion by Submission

A violin completes the voices as we sing. Chesiqah completes her husband. We complete Messiah. He was made first. We are the completion of Him.

When our Master was pierced to the heart, the blood and then the water came out and then the second Eve was brought forth out of His side.

The violin completes our singing, filling in what is lacking. It fills in the sound that is lacking in our voices, completing the incense that is going up to our Father. We complete our Master. He is not complete without us. We fulfill Him in every way by our submission to Him. We submit ourselves to Him. We submit our selves, one to another. We complement Him.

We cannot submit ourselves to Him unless we are humble, like Him. Submission is an attitude. It is not exalting ourselves or trying to be equal. It is not like women's liberation which is the cause of all the horrible dysfunction of the whole society — participating in the same sin as Lucifer who went beyond his created position, wanted to go to the head of the assembly and be preeminent in the universe. We have to function within our realm and our position that our Father has given each one of us, especially husbands and wives. If you try to interchange those roles, it causes havoc; it is evil.

Our Master is our Savior; we are His servants. We live for Him who died and rose again for our sake. It is only fitting that we no longer live for ourselves. If you live for yourself, you do not know the Savior. Anyone who lives for himself has not yet submitted to the coming King. We no longer live for ourselves but for our Savior, Yahshua. It is fitting that we would offer our new lives to Him, offer our bodies to Him, our very lives, our personality, everything we have, until we are conformed to Him, until we become just like Him. For the rest of our lives we are going to fall deeper and deeper in love with Him.
